APRIL DEMONSTRATOR.— DAVID TRIPP

Dr. David Tripp spends hours driving around the Texas countryside and small towns searching for subjects to paint. He is looking for the remnants of times past. Today only the shells and husks filling stations, general stores, theatres and other public buildings remain to remind us of another age and time.

Dr. Tripp is teacher of Art History and Philosophy at Arlington Martin High School and Adjunct Professor of Religion and Humanities at Texas Wesleyan University. Everyday is filled with stimulation from academic studies And interaction with students, followed by a dash to the Countryside in pursuit of compositions to capture in Watercolor.

“Cover the canvas at the first go, and then work on until you see nothing more to add.
Don’t proceed according to rules and principles, but paint what you observe and feel.
Paint generously and unhesitatingly, for it is best not to lose the first impression.”
